Technologies of products production

Amber Palace tableware and souvenirs are produced using a unique technology that allows you to preserve all the physical properties and chemical composition of amber.

The technological process consists in sintering separate stones of amber into one unit.

It is important to emphasize that this is not the melting of amber, it does not turn into a liquid state when exposed to a sufficiently high temperature. Amber raw materials are heated at a gentle temperature, after which they are slightly cooled under the press in special forms without oxygen access.

Under the influence of low temperatures and gentle mode, the pieces of amber are connected to each other through diffusion only along the perimeter. Thanks to this approach, each product is given a unique and special pattern. The finished semi-finished product is then carefully ground and polished by hand, and connected to the silver parts by special pins and professional glue.

In total, the production cycle consists of eight stages:

1. Development of the model range: professional artists-jewelers prepare sketches on the chosen theme, on the basis of which later master models of future products are made;
2. Production of the master model from silver;

3. manufacturing of rubber forms;
4. Waxing;
5. Casting in silver of 875 samples or in white jewelry bronze;
6. Sampling (for silver only);
7. Jewelry mounting (processing and polishing of silver parts, their connection with amber parts of the product);
8. Final grinding and polishing.

The main distinctive feature of this manufacturing process is the preservation of aesthetic and physical properties of the mineral without any additives - artificial and natural. The composition of Amber Palace products is 100% natural amber and silver 875 samples (or white jewelry bronze).

In addition to dishes, Amber Palace creates original gifts and souvenirs for every taste: Christmas tree toys, business card holders, tea sets, paintings, dominoes, chess, caskets, watches and much more - everything is made exclusively from the best natural raw materials by highly skilled professionals.
